FORWORD

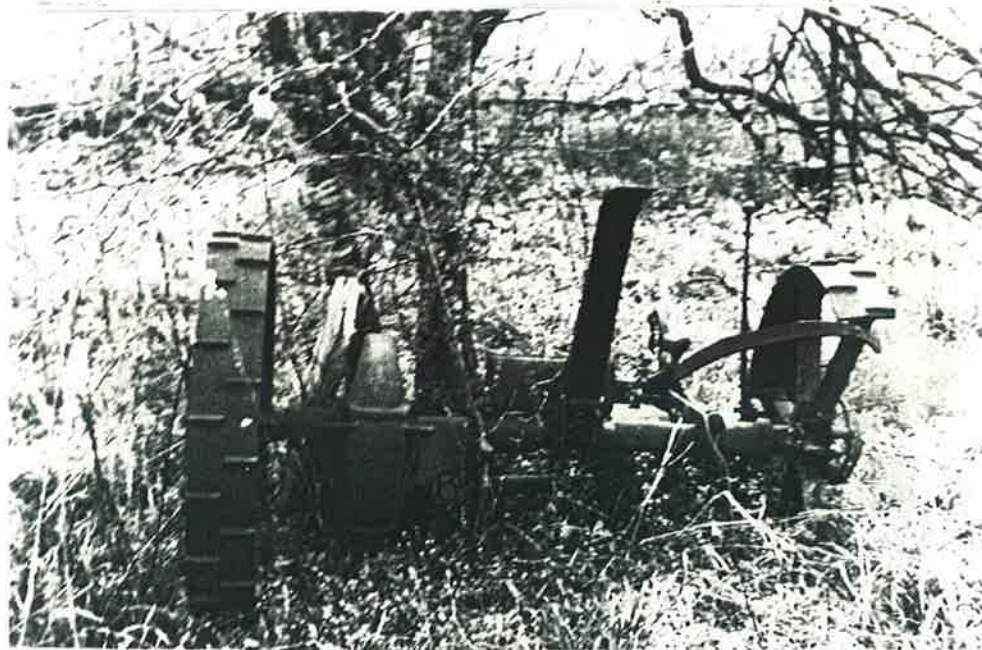

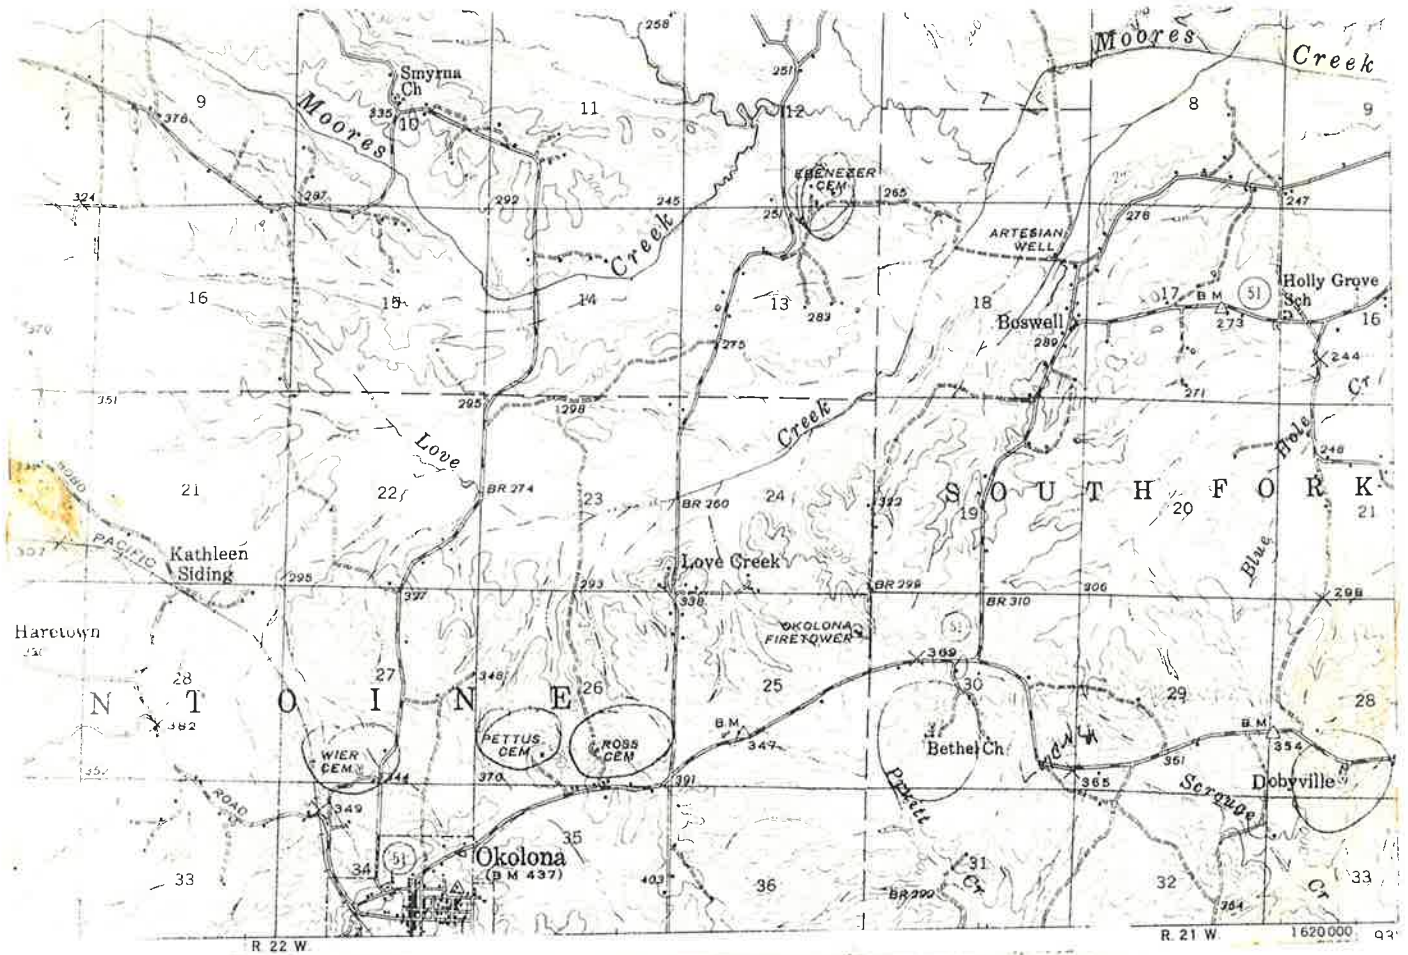

The "HAPPENINGS IN OKOLONA AND ANTOINE TOWNSHIP" is taken from the SOUTHERN STANDARD and the GURDON TIMES. The local correspondants were primarely Mrs. GEORGE W. GARRETT in the STANDARD and Mrs. LOUELLA RILEY SPENCER in the GURDON TIMES, with the sisters, RUBY and ELWEIS FAIR taking over after Mrs. SPENCER left.

Some of the names are spelled in various ways, such as ORSBURN, OSBORN and ORSBORNE; WALLIS and WALLICE; CARGILE and CARGLE, and others. Most of these spellings have been retained in this book.

It is hoped that these clippings will in part replace the lost files of the OKOLONA MESSENGER, and will supply a portion of the news and activities of the Okolona area that would otherwise be difficult to locate.

A special thanks to Mrs. VELMA SEALE for proofreading and correcting the many mistakes in transcribing the clippings, and to the CLARK COUNTY HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION form making them available for individual research.

MR. ROY ORSBURN

HAPPENINGS IN OKOLONA AND ANTOINE TOWNSHIP

Roy Orsburn's family lived in Okolona when he was born in 1906, and he has spent most of his life there. He has served the town as city marshal, mail carrier, postmaster and mayor, and even spent a few years as a Clark County deputy sheriff.

Orsburn remembers growing up in a much different Okolona than the small community that exists today.

"Okolona back then was a pretty good size town," he said. Downtown consisted of about three blocks of stores and offices lining both sides of the street.

The town had a bank, a train depot and three cotton gins, he said. Cotton farms surrounded the town and most local families were sharecroppers.

"The average family in the horse and mule days that was sharecropping worked 20 acres," he said. "They usually worked about 15 acres of that in cotton and five of it in corn and vegetables."

He explained that each sharecropper provided his own tools and animals and paid rent on the land with one third of his cotton crop and one fourth of his corn.

During the winter, many of the farmers worked in the timber industry. "At that time there was some of as fine of white oak timber in this country as there was on the face of the earth," Orsburn said. The timber was cut into "stave board" and shipped by railroad to factories where it was used to make barrels and kegs.

Orsburn graduated from Okolona High School in 1920 and spent the next two years in college at what is now Henderson State University. He paid his way by working as a maintenance man and groundskeeper for the college.

A severe case of appendicitis and the resulting surgery ended his college career. He returned to Okolona to recuperate and help out on his family's farm.

"My daddy owned the best farm there was between Okolona and Burtzell," Orsburn said. "He had some good mules and horses," All the farming equipment was pulled by pairs of horses or mules, and Orsburn bought many of the animals himself at the livestock barn in downtown Arkadelphia.

Orsburn raised his first crop on his own in 1925. "I sold my cotton when I ginned it for 25 cents a pound" that year he said. When the Depression hit, the price dropped to seven and a half cents.

Besides farming, Orsburn also worked at several other jobs. He served as city marshal, did carpentry work and delivered mail on a rural route around Okolona. On the mail route, Orsburn covered more than 20 miles a day six days a week over dirt roads, he said.

"If it rained very much, it wasn't a dirt road. It was a mud road."

When the roads were muddy he delivered the mail on a horse. "You just couldn't go any way other than horseback except in the summertime after everything dried up." At times, the roads were so bad he had to ride his horse up on the bank beside the road instead of in it.

Orsburn left the post office at Okolona by 9 each morning and usually made it back "between 4 p.m. and dark," he said.

NEWS FROM OKOLONA

He supplied his own transportation and equipment including a "big ol' slicker" to cover him and the saddlebags full of mail in bad weather.

Orsburn helped build the first gravel road in the area in 1927. The road began in Okolona and went towards Prescott.

The Depression hit Okolona in the late '20s, and Orsburn began looking for other work. "I have myself worked for 50 cents a day -- a 10-hour day," he said. He left home in 1929 and went to Oklahoma City, Okla., to try to find a job.

"Tis day and time folks can't realize how hard it was to get work," he said.

The U.S. Army was signing up recruits in Oklahoma City and Orsburn joined a long line of applicants. Only he and one other man were chosen.

The Army sent him to El Paso, Texas, where he became a member of the 82nd Field Artillery. There was also a cavalry toop stationed in El Paso and Orsburn helped patrol the Mexican border on horseback.

After five years as a regimental supply sergeant, Orsburn returned home. He bought a train ticket as far as Texarkana. The next stop after Texarkana was Hot Springs, but he didn't want to go that far.

When the train left Texarkana, Orsburn jumped on the back of a car and held on, going through towns, trains were required to abide by a 10 mile per hour speed limit. He jumped off when the train slowed down in Gurdon.

Back home in Okolona, Orsburn returned to farming and other jobs including logging and carpentry. He was also a substitute mail carrier, and he took over the city marshal's job again. He was the town's only law officer and he had to transport his occasional prisoners to Arkadelphia. "We didn't have no place to lock 'em up" in Okolona, he said.

From 1954-57, Orsburn's law enforcement career took a different turn. Clark County Sheriff Buren Hardin recruited him as his chief deputy.

"Anytime anything came up that nobody wanted to do at all, the chief deputy had to do it," Orsburn jokes. He worked "day and night" all over the county.

One duty he performed often in those days was ataking out whiskey still. After he located a still deep in the woods, he would hide and observe it for several days.

"I knew as much about what they (the moonshiners) was doing as they did," he said. "We'd be doggone sure they was there when we went in."

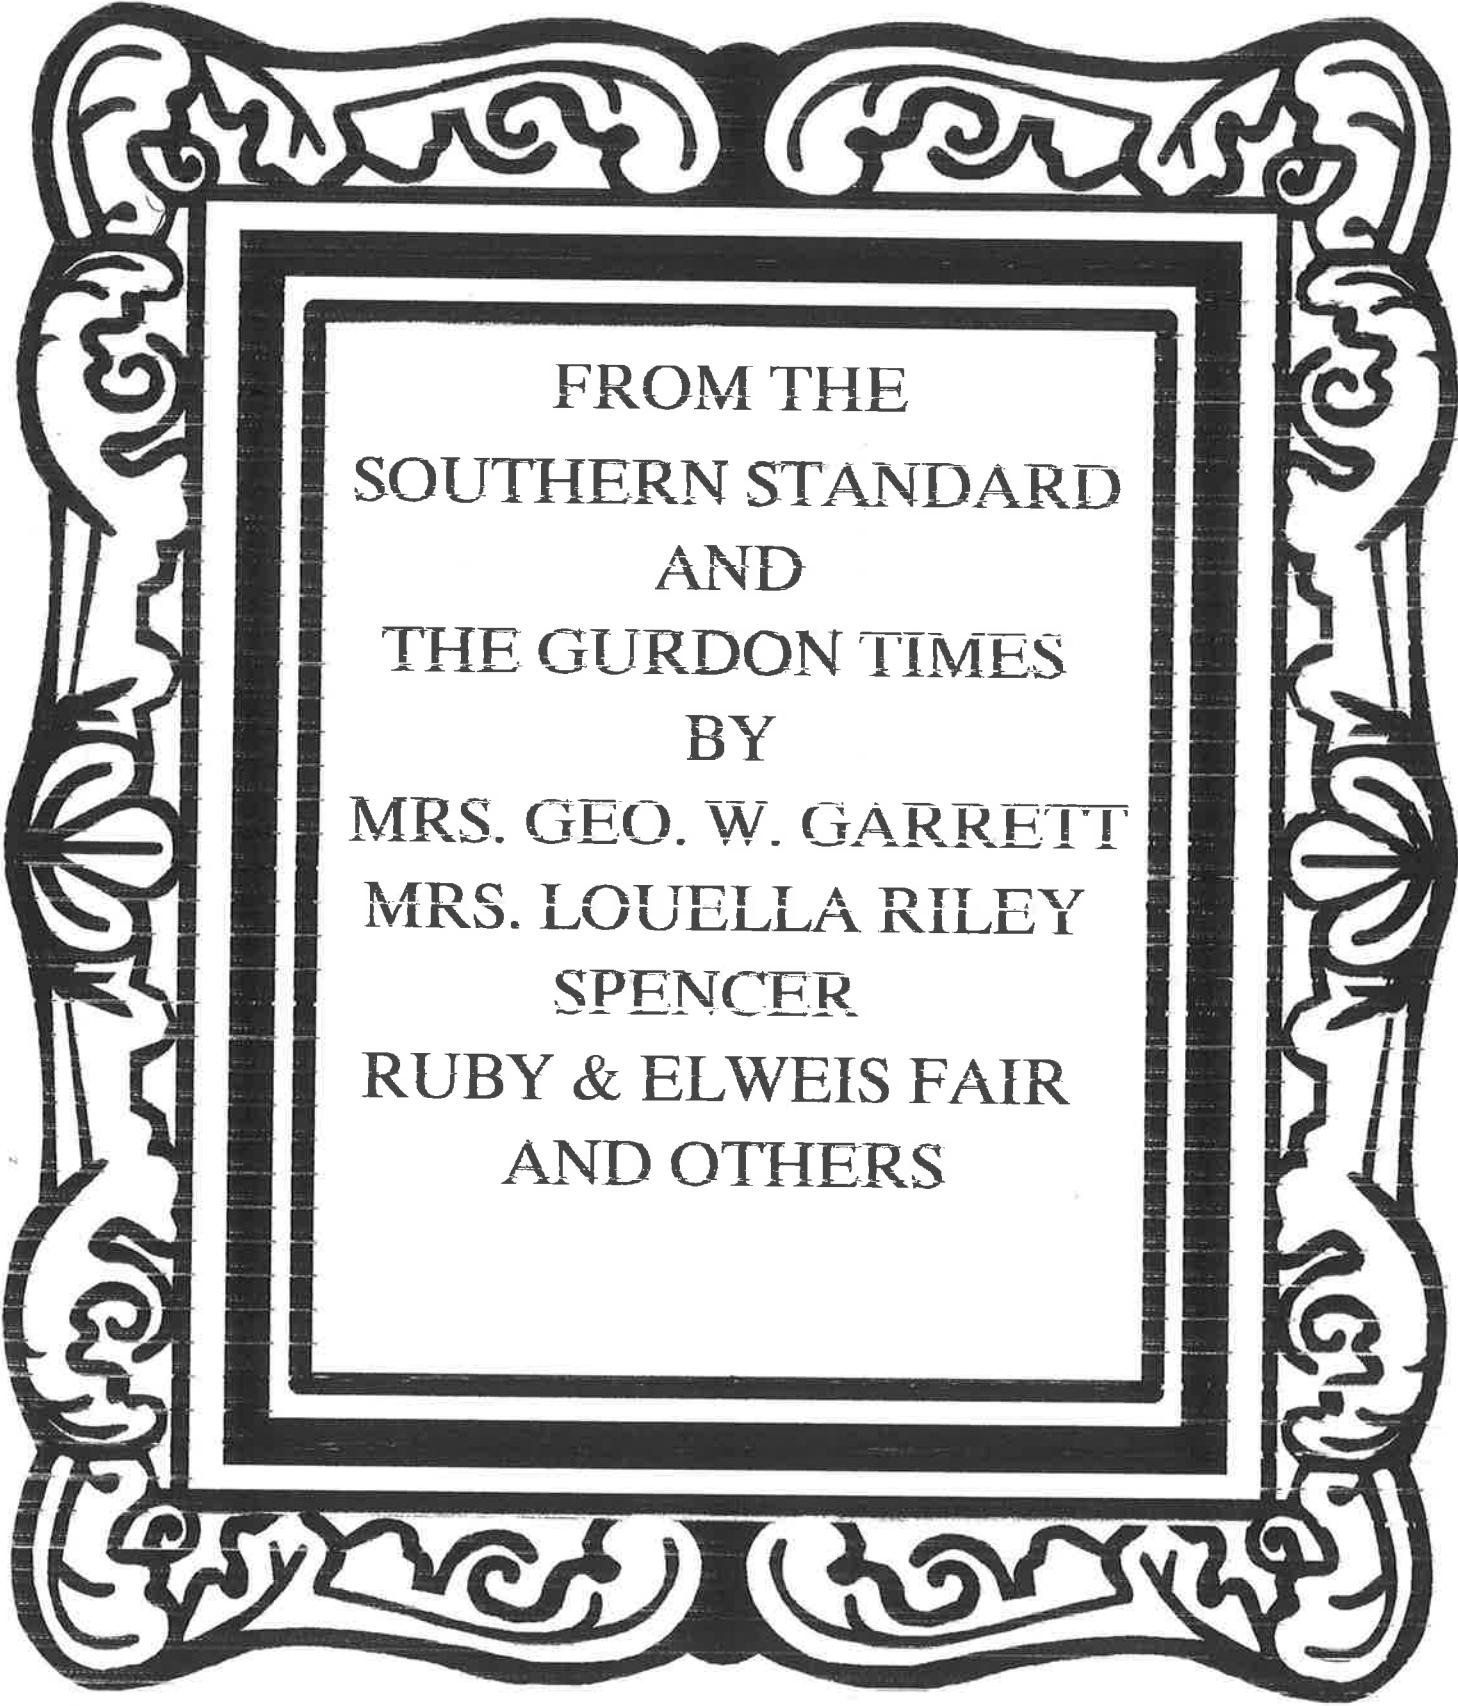

Orsburn was well known as a crack shot with a pistol. "I could shoot where I looked," But, he added, he seldom drew his gun, never shot anyone and no one ever shot at him.

"I put forth all kinds of effort not to make enemies," he said.

M.E. REVIVAL CLOSED SUNDAY NIGHT

The ten days revival of the Methodist Church came to a close Sunday night. Every service was an enjoyable and uplifting one, and were conducted by Rev. O.E. HOLMES, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Nashville.

The service Sunday night was a very impressive one and the atmosphere of the entire church was one of holiness, as we gazed upon the groups of small children encircled about the altar to be received into the church. When we witnessed this scene, we were reminded of our Savior's words, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

FARMERS TO MEET IN OKOLONA AT 3 P.M. SATURDAY

Farmers of Clark County will hold a meeting at the school house in Okolona at 3:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon for the purpose of making arrangements for the purchase of pure bred bulls to be shipped to Clark County farmers.

W.B. EAST, Arkadelphia banker, will tell how the purchase of the bulls will be made, and what it will mean to the Clark County farmers to improve their herds. He, like most all forward-looking citizens, believes that there is a great future for the farmers who go into dairying and cattle raising making it one of the main objectives of the farm program.

County Agent ALSTON states that 18 farmers have already signed up to purchase pure bred bulls. The white-faced Herfords seem to be favorites. The White-faced Herfords are fast growing cattle especially adapted for beef.

The county agent has set a goal of 25 pure bred bulls to be placed in Clark County. That number would entitle them to carload freight rates.

Every farmer in Clark County is invited to this meeting at Okolona Saturday, September 25th, at 3:00 o'clock to be held at the school house.

DAVIS - GARRETT

A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends on both sides of the Isthmus (Canal Zone) took place at 7:30 on the evening of November 16 at the home of Lt. and Mrs. JOHN M. DAVIS in Christobal, when their eldest daughter, MARGARET MILDRED DAVIS, became the bride of RUFUS C. GARRETT. The Rev. CECIL L. MORGAN, pastor of the Christobal Union Church officiated in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white sharkskin, with turban with a nose veil. Her flowers were a corsage of white rosebuds. Mrs. JACK MORRIS of Balboa was matron of honor and the bride's attendant. Mr. MORRIS was best man for the bridegroom.

Ferns, green foliage, and white flowers were arranged with pleasing effect to form a beautiful tropical background for the ceremony and for the reception which was given to a large group of friends immediately following. Baskets of lillies and coffe roses were used in general decoration.

The large three-tired cake held a minature bridal couple on top and was flanked by tall white candles in silver holders.

Mr. GARRETT and his bride are making their wedding trip thru the southern states and until after Christmas will visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE W. GARRETT in Okolona.

Mrs. GARRETT is one of the most beautiful and popular members of the younger set of the Atlantic side, has been a resident of the Canal Zone since infancy. Her parents came to the Isthmus from Tennessee before the completion of the canal, and were residents of Garum and Balboa prior to 1928 when they were transferred to Christobal.

Mr. GARRETT was graduated in 1931 from Christobal High School and later completed a course at Temple University in Philadelphia. Mr. GARRETT has been a resident of the Canal Zone since 1934, and is employed with the Department Engineers at Ft. DeLesseps.

Following their return from the States, he and his bride will have their home in Colon.

ELWEIS FAIR, member of the Senior Class of the Okolona High School, is raising 200 Buff Orpington chickens as her project in the Farm Management Class. The first week in January she ordered a 500 chick Electric Brooder, and 200 day old chicks. The Brooder came the 13th of January, and the chicks the 9th of February. She intended to use an old shed for a brooder house but soon found it would not be warm enough, so with her brothers financial assistance she bought enough dressed lumber to build a modern Brooder house 10 by 14 feet. It has a large window and door on the east side, two windows and large ventilation door on the south side, all windows and the ventilation door are hinged at the top so they can be pushed outward for thorough ventilation. The brooder is wired from the kitchen of her home.

The water fountains are home made of half gallon fruit jars and bucket lids and so arranged that the chicks can't get their feet in the water. The feed troughs are small troughs with wire so arranged across the top to prevent their getting in them. Besides the brooder she has a small heating stove in use in very cold weather and in case the electricity is cut off. ELWEIS hopes to be able to pay for the Brooder house and Brooder with this bunch of Broilers. She is using Nutrena Chick food and LeGears Chick Tablets with plenty of water. She intends to write the Farm Management Class to inspect her project when the Broilers are four weeks old.

FATHER AND SON

Be more than a dad, be a chum to the lad;
Be a part of his life, every hour of the day,
Find time to talk with him, take time to walk with him.

Share in his studies, and share in his play,
Take him places, to ball-games and races,
Teach him things you want him to know.
Don't live apart from him, be his comrade,

He is needing you so.

Never neglect him, though young still respect him,

Hear his opinions with patience and pride,
Show him his error, but be not a terror
Grim-visaed and fearful, when he's at your side

Know what his thoughts are, know what his sports are,

Know all his playmates, its easy to,
Be such a father that when troubles gather,
You'll be the first one for council he'll turn to
You can inspire him with courage and fire him

Hot with ambition for deeds that are good
He'll not betray you nor illy repay you
If you have taught him the things you should

Father and son must in all things be one
Partners in trouble and comrades in joy
More than a dad was, the best pal you had
And to your son be the best chum that he had.
